Course Description

Political violence has cast a long shadow over modern Irish history. This course begins in 1800, when the Act of Union reinforced British rule in Ireland by abolishing the Irish parliament. For over a century, Irish men and women—from the Fenians to the IRA—resisted and rebelled, until independence for the South was won through violent revolution and the Republic later established. The partitioned North, on the other hand, still joined to the United Kingdom, continued to be a hotbed of conflict and ethnic tension until very recent times. With the Good Friday Agreement and the Queen’s visit, hope has arisen that Ireland has at last emerged from the shadow of a gunman.

Lectures will provide students with a chronological narrative, covering milestone events and movements in modern Ireland: the emergence of ‘national’ politics, the Great Famine, demands for Home Rule, cultural revival, War and Revolution, independence and ‘modern’ Ireland, Ireland in Europe, the Northern Ireland Troubles, economic transformation and the collapse of the Celtic Tiger. Tutorials will facilitate debate on key themes that traverse this formative and still contentious period: radicalism, religion and the Church, land ownership, and gender relations.

Course Aims

1. Develop students’ understanding of the discipline of history and enhance their skills, as upper level students, to think historically, analytically and discern fact from myth.

2. Add to students’ knowledge of Ireland in the recent past and to their understanding of the period’s central concepts: resistance to British rule in Ireland, and revolution in Irish governance, politics and society.

3. Give students a grounding not only in specific events, movements and personalities in the island of Ireland since the Act of Union in 1800, but also enable them to make broad comparisons of the way in which Ireland and the Irish have met various social, political and economic challenges over time, and engage with the key themes (radicalism, religion, land, gender etc.) that traverse the period.

3. Learning and Teaching Rationale

The purpose of lectures is to give students a chronological overview of Irish history since 1800, focusing on two central themes—the resistance of British rule in Ireland, and the revolution in Irish governance, politics and society. In tutorials, students will be encouraged to engage critically with primary and secondary sources (available before the class) and—in their in-class presentations and discussion—to address the period’s major historical issues. Outside class, students will be required to undertake independent research and write an analytical essay (the Long Essay). The knowledge, insight and historical skills obtained during the lectures and tutorials—and via individual research and preparation for class—will be tested in an in-class test, and short and long essays. In this way, students will be able to achieve the above Learning Outcomes in the context of the specific Learning and Teaching activities offered by the course.

4. Teaching Strategies

The sequence of lectures is meant to take a step-by-step approach to Irish history since 1800. There is a required textbook (Modern Ireland: A Very Short Introduction; see Course Resources below, section 9) that offers a basic chronological framework, to supplement the lectures. This must be read in advance of the course. There are two other suggested textbooks (The Irish Experience since 1800 and Ireland, 1798–1998: war, peace and beyond; see Course Resources below, section 9), which should be used to supplement the very short required textbook. However, it should be noted that lectures are not simply a re-running of the textbooks! 'Lecture' has a flexible meaning in this summer course and many lectures will include discussion and activities. You should attend all the lectures because they add value to what you have read prior to and during the course.

The tutorials provide an opportunity for more focused discussion and for students to present their research and ideas. Each tutorial addresses a distinct topic and has assigned to it a short list of readings on this topic. I also give you a short list of questions/reflections for each tutorial. The tutorial readings and questions/reflections are available via Moodle. You don’t need to answer all the questions/reflections, but you should come to class prepared to discuss some of the sources and be able to contribute to our tutorial discussion. Students will find the tutorials much more interesting and useful if they come prepared, having reflected on the lectures they’ve heard on the particular topic/period and done some reading.

During the tutorial, one or two students will give their in-class presentation. These students should read all the suggested readings for the tutorial (supplemented by the relevant textbook chapters) and answer one of the questions/reflections in their presentation. We’ll assign presentations in the first tutorial. Students presenting on the same day should liaise before the class, to make sure they speak on different aspects of the topic.

A full bibliography is provided in the Appendix (and on Moodle). Use this list—in addition to the knowledge you have gained during the course—to research your long essay.

The short essay and in-class test are formative assessments, to test how your knowledge, understanding and skills are developing during the course.

Please Note: In addition to fulfilling the above assessment requirements, students are expected to attend at least 80% of their lectures and tutorials in order to pass the course.

In-Class Test

Please arrive to class early; the test will start promptly at 1pm, and last one hour. Students will be given to read a primary source connected with the topics covered in the first week of lectures/tutorials and asked to answer some short factual and analytical questions.

Presentation

Presentations (of no more than ten minutes) are to be delivered during the tutorials. Each tutorial has assigned to it a short list of readings and questions/reflections; these are available via Moodle. Use these questions/reflections as the basis for your presentation. For example, in Tutorial 3 (The Great Irish Famine) a question might be: “Was the British Government to blame for the Famine?” You can interpret and answer this question in your presentation. Or come up with your own question/title. Please remember there isn’t time for PowerPoint: use just one or two slides if you have to. In tutorials with more than one student presenting, please liaise beforehand to make sure you are addressing different questions/aspects of the topic.

Short Essay

Length: 750—1000 words. A short list of essay questions will be released closer to the time. This is a good opportunity to practice your skills in analysing a question and planning an essay, ahead of the Long Essay at the end of the course. Use the online guide (https://student.unsw.edu.au/essay-writing-basics) to help you prepare, plan and write, but please note your do not need to include foot/end notes and bibliography in this essay.

Long Essay

Length: 2500–3000 words. A list of essay questions will be released towards the end of the course. You will then research and write your essay using the knowledge and skills you have gained during the lectures, tutorials and your own reading. You must include foot/end notes and a bibliography in your essay. Use the online guide to essay preparation, writing and referencing: https://student.unsw.edu.au/essay-writing-basics
Grades

All results are reviewed at the end of each semester and may be adjusted to ensure equitable marking across the School.

The proportion of marks lying in each grading range is determined not by any formula or quota system, but by the way that students respond to assessment tasks and how well they meet the objectives of the course. Nevertheless, since higher grades imply performance that is well above average, the number of distinctions and high distinctions awarded in a typical course is relatively small. At the other extreme, on average 6.1% of students do not meet minimum standards, a little more (8.6%) in first year courses. For more information on the grading categories see https://my.unsw.edu.au/student/academiclife/assessment/GuideToUNSWGrades.html

Submission of Assessment Tasks

Assignments submitted to the School Assignment Box must have a properly completed School Assessment Coversheet, with the declaration signed and dated by hand. It can be downloaded from https://hal.arts.unsw.edu.au/students/courses/course-outlines/. It is individual students’ responsibility to make a backup copy of the assignment prior to submission and retain it.

Assignments must be submitted before 4pm on the due date. Assignments received after this time will be marked as having been received late.

Two assignment copies must be submitted for every assessment task:
- One paper copy. To be posted into the Assignment Box at the School of Humanities and Languages reception (located outside Morven Brown 258). A completed cover sheet must be securely attached to assignments.
- One soft copy must be sent through Turnitin on Moodle by 4pm on the due date.

Late Submission of Assignments

Late assignments will attract a penalty. Of the total mark, 3% will be deducted each day for the first week, with Saturday and Sunday counting as two days, and 10% each week thereafter.

The penalty may not apply where students are able to provide documentary evidence of illness or serious misadventure. Time pressure resulting from undertaking assignments for other courses does not constitute an acceptable excuse for lateness.

6. Attendance/Class Clash

Attendance

Students are expected to be regular and punctual in attendance at all classes in the courses in which they are enrolled. Explanations of absences from classes or requests for permission to be absent from classes should be discussed with the teacher and where applicable accompanied by a medical certificate. If students attend less than 80% of their possible classes they may be refused final assessment.
Students who falsify their attendance or falsify attendance on behalf of another student will be dealt with under the student misconduct policy.

Class Clash

A student who is approved a permissible clash must fulfil the following requirements:

a. The student must provide the Course Convenor with copies of lecture notes from those lectures missed on a regular basis as agreed by the Course Convenor and the student.

b. If a student does indeed attend a lecture for which they had secured a permitted clash they will still submit lecture notes as evidence of attendance.

c. Failure to meet these requirements is regarded as unsatisfactory performance in the course and a failure to meet the Faculty's course attendance requirement. Accordingly, Course Convenors will fail students who do not meet this performance/attendance requirement.

d. Students must attend the clashed lecture on a specific date if that lecture contains an assessment task for the course such as a quiz or test. Inability to meet this requirement would be grounds for a Course Convenor refusing the application. If the student misses the said lecture there is no obligation on the Course Convenor to schedule a make-up quiz or test and the student can receive zero for the assessment task. It should be noted that in many courses a failure to complete an assessment task can be grounds for course failure.

7. Academic Honesty and Plagiarism

Plagiarism is presenting someone else’s thoughts or work as your own. It can take many forms, from not having appropriate academic referencing to deliberate cheating.

In many cases plagiarism is the result of inexperience about academic conventions. The University has resources and information to assist you to avoid plagiarism.

The Learning Centre assists students with understanding academic integrity and how to not plagiarise. Information is available on their website: http://www.lc.unsw.edu.au/plagiarism/. They also hold workshops and can help students one-on-one.

If plagiarism is found in your work when you are in first year, your lecturer will offer you assistance to improve your academic skills. They may ask you to look at some online resources, attend the Learning Centre, or sometimes resubmit your work with the problem fixed. However, more serious instances in first year, such as stealing another student’s work or paying someone to do your work, may be investigated under the Student Misconduct Procedures.

Repeated plagiarism (even in first year), plagiarism after first year, or serious instances, may also be investigated under the Student Misconduct Procedures. The penalties under the procedures can include a reduction in marks, failing a course or for the most serious matters (like plagiarism in an Honours thesis) even suspension from the university. The Student Misconduct Procedures are available here: http://www.gs.unsw.edu.au/policy/documents/studentmisconductprocedures.pdf

9. Course Resources

Use the Library website - http://www.library.unsw.edu.au/index.html - to source all print and online resources

Required Textbook

Recommended Textbooks – refer to at least one of these to supplement the short textbook above and see Bibliography for other background reading

Reference works – for looking up key names/terms

Readings for Tutorials

Readings will be listed on Moodle, according to the content of the tutorial. Many of the tutorial readings are chapters/extracts from e-books or digitized extracts from print books—available online via the Library catalogue and linked under the course code ARTS2287: http://searchfirst.library.unsw.edu.au/primo_library/libweb/action/search.do?vid=UNSWS&fn=search&vl(freeText0)=ARTS2287=ARTS2287).

Some physical/print books are also housed in the Library’s High Use Collection.

Websites

Please make use of online resources and read up on recent events in Ireland as reported in the media. But use only reliable websites: please do not use www.wikipedia.org. For quick definitions/facts, use instead online resources such as the Oxford Companion to Irish History (above, ‘Reference works’). See also:

10. Course Evaluation and Development

Courses are periodically reviewed and students’ feedback is used to improve them. Feedback is gathered using various means including UNSW’s Course and Teaching Evaluation and Improvement (CATEI) process.

11. Student Support

The Learning Centre is available for individual consultation and workshops on academic skills. Find out more by visiting the below website:
http://www.lc.unsw.edu.au

12. Grievances

All students should be treated fairly in the course of their studies at UNSW. Students who feel they have not been dealt with fairly should in the first instance attempt to resolve any issues with their tutor or the course convenors.

If such an approach fails to resolve the matter, the School of Humanities has an academic member of staff who acts as a Grievance Officer for the School. This staff member is identified on the notice board in the School of Humanities. Further information about UNSW grievance procedures is available at: https://my.unsw.edu.au/student/atoz/Complaints.html

13. Other Information

myUNSW is the single online access point for UNSW services and information, integrating online services for applicants, commencing & current students and UNSW staff. To visit myUNSW please visit either of the below links:
https://my.unsw.edu.au
https://my.unsw.edu.au/student/atoz/ABC.html

OHS

UNSW's Occupational Health and Safety Policy requires each person to work safely and responsibly, in order to avoid personal injury and to protect the safety of others. For all matters relating to Occupational Health, Safety and environment, see http://www.ohs.unsw.edu.au/

Special Consideration

In cases where illness or other circumstances produce repeated or sustained absence, students should apply for Special Consideration as soon as possible.

The application must be made via Online Services in myUNSW. Log into myUNSW and go to My Student Profile tab > My Student Services channel > Online Services > Special Consideration.
Applications on the grounds of illness must be filled in by a medical practitioner. Further information is available at: https://my.unsw.edu.au/student/atoz/SpecialConsideration.html

Student Equity and Disabilities Unit

Students who have a disability that requires some adjustment in their learning and teaching environment are encouraged to discuss their study needs with the course convener prior to or at the commencement of the course, or with the Student Equity Officers (Disability) in the Student Equity and Disabilities Unit (9385 4734). Information for students with disabilities is available at: http://www.studentequity.unsw.edu.au

Issues to be discussed may include access to materials, signers or note-takers, the provision of services and additional examination and assessment arrangements. Early notification is essential to enable any necessary adjustments to be made.
APPENDIX: Full Bibliography

Everything here is available – in print or online – via the UNSW Library catalogue, http://library.unsw.edu.au/. Books ‘on order’ hopefully will arrive by early 2014. As mentioned earlier, many of the ‘high use’ readings, e-books and digitized extracts for tutorials are linked on the Library website under the course code ARTS2287: http://searchfirst.library.unsw.edu.au/primo_library/libweb/action/search.do?vid=UNWS&fn=search&vl(freeText0)=ARTS2287=ARTS2287)

Databases

Make use of the many excellent databases subscribed to by the Library. Select ‘Subject Guides’ on the homepage and then ‘World History’ for a list of key databases: Historical Abstracts is especially useful for undergraduate research.

I also recommend the Oxford Dictionary of National Biography for looking up the lives of major British and Irish political and historical figures.

Primary sources – newspapers and parliamentary papers – are available through the following databases:

- The Historical Guardian and Observer
- The Historical Irish Times
- The Times Digital Archive
- House of Commons Parliamentary Papers
- The Illustrated London News Historical Archive

Websites

Please make use of online resources and read up on recent events in Ireland as reported in the media. But use only reliable websites: please do not use www.wikipedia.org. For quick definitions/facts, use instead online resources such as the Oxford Companion to Irish History (see above ‘General histories’).

The BBC (http://www.bbc.co.uk) for current news on Ireland (e.g., search for articles on the ‘Bloody Sunday enquiry’) and its useful history pages, e.g., on the Northern Ireland Troubles: http://www.bbc.co.uk/history/troubles
