

Marx 2.0

A symposium
February 22-23, 2018

Location: UNSW Sydney, Kensington Campus, Morven Brown Building, room G3

Thursday, February 22

- 9.30 Welcome
- 9.45-11.00 Michael Quante (University of Muenster): Positive liberty as realizing the essence of man
- 11.00-12.15 Douglas Moggach (University of Ottawa): Marx as Post-Kantian Perfectionist? Reconsidering Left-Hegelian Debates
- 12.15-1.45 Lunch
- 1.45-3 Thomas Gutmann (University of Muenster): Marx, Alienation, Individual Rights?
- 3-4.15 Heikki Ikäheimo (UNSW Sydney): Rehabilitating Species Essence
- 4.15-4.45 Coffee
- 4.45-6.00 Charles Barbour (Western Sydney University): The Young Republican: Marx Before Communism

Friday, February 23

- 9.00-10.15 Samuel Chambers (Johns Hopkins): As The Hart Pants...; Or, Money is Not a Commodity: Marx's Unorthodox Account of Money, and Why it Matters
- 10.15-11.45 Carleton Christensen (Australian National University): Abstractly Human Labour and the Reduction to Concrete Labour
- 11.45-1.00 Lunch
- 1.00-2.15 Andy Blunden (Independent, Melbourne): Capital and the Ur-praxis of the fight for socialism
- 2.15-3.30 Robyn Ferrell (University of Sydney): Free world (a lyric essay)
- 3.30-4.00 Coffee
- 4.00-5.15 Jean-Philippe Deranty (Macquarie University): Marx in the age of automation
- 5.15-6.30 Thomas Meyer (University of Muenster): Was Engels the first causal interventionist?

Free admission, but due to limited seating please email the organizer if you would like to attend: Heikki Ikäheimo, UNSW Sydney, h.ikaheimo@unsw.edu.au